STUDENTS REACHED

Surrounded by information. Starved of signal.

? What you already see

You've built the academic frameworks, the pastoral support, and the wellbeing program. For a lot of senior students, the internal switch is still off.

They're compliant but not committed. Present in the room, absent from their own future. The feed shows them everyone else's highlight reel and they've quietly written themselves out of the story.

The gap isn't information. It's signal: the one message that cuts through the noise.

→ What Day of Hope does

Day of Hope is 5 hours of signal. No screens, no phones. Pen and paper, a quiet room, and a message they don't hear anywhere else.

Glen takes a full cohort through purpose, then the thinking that holds them back, then what's actually possible.

Hope is a skill. We name it, practise it, and rebuild it. By the final bell, every student has a purpose written in their own hand.

The seminar, in 3 modules (5 hours)

1 The power of purpose

Students name their character strengths and write a vision they can actually see. Motivation alone won't shift a Year 10 first thing in the morning. Vocabulary will, so we give them the words.

2 Jailbreak

How default thinking gets installed, and how to walk out of it. Glen tells the truth about his own story, and students leave with a tool for resilience they can use that night.

3 Unstoppable

We borrow Google's idea of moonshot goals and put it in the hands of a 16-year-old. Students write what they're going for, and your pastoral staff get the same stories so the conversation continues after the seminar.

Students leave with a purpose in their own handwriting, the 4 sub-skills that build hope (grit, optimism, courage, and resilience), and one specific action they're taking the next morning.

Why schools book Glen, then book him again.

25 years on stage. 10,000+ presentations. Many of Australia's leading schools have run our programs every year for more than a decade.

I've listened to a number of motivational and inspirational speakers before, but none have had such a lasting impact on me. It genuinely shifted the way I think about my future and what's possible.

Year 12 student

St Catherine's School, Sydney, NSW

Your presentation gave me a physical sensation in my chest. I feel grounded and full, more confident and secure in myself, and able to imagine possibilities in my life.

Year 12 student

PLC Perth, WA

Any school would be blessed with your wise words, handing that light bulb to young adolescents so that they can brighten their own future.

Year 10 student

Ipswich Grammar School, QLD

I'm sitting in a cafe writing about everything I learnt: my purpose, my goals, and what I want to achieve. I now have the self-belief that I can figure out how I'm going to impact this world for the better.

Year 11 student

Ivanhoe Girls' Grammar, VIC

Never in my life have I experienced such an engaging and hard hitting lecture. I've already started applying it to my own mindset, just like you mentioned.

MEET GLEN

The person on the stage

Glen Gerreyn, founder of The HopeFULL Institute and former Young Australian of the Year (Qld, Community Service). He has spent 25 years building hope into young people, reaching over a million students. 750 schools and counting.

Glen is plain-spoken and direct, and he doesn't swear to win the room. He leads with story, then strategy. Students sit forward. Staff take notes too.

Give your senior cohort a day of perspective.

- Full-day depth. 5 hours, including breaks set by your bell times. Built for Years 10 to 12.
- In-person only. On your campus, in your hall. We don't run this online.
- Room rules that work. Pen and paper, no phones, quiet enough to think. You provide the setting, AV, and water. We bring the rest.
- Whole-school value. Every student gets the seminar workbook, plus follow-up resources for your wellbeing team.
- Book early for choice. Day of Hope is in demand and dates go fast. Get in early for the most flexibility on your year-level calendar.
